

A Personal Finance Boot Camp for Teachers:
Content, Strategies, Resources and Best Practices for Implementing Standard 9.2

Teaching financial literacy? Trying to get up to speed on personal finance topics that you'll be teaching? Looking for new ideas, resources, and strategies that engage and stimulate middle and high school-aged students? Need ideas for reaching and teaching special needs, at-risk, advanced, and English language learners? Not sure how to get started?

Fun, interactive, and meaningful financial literacy teacher training workshops are available in two New Jersey locations. A 2-day, 13-hour professional development opportunity awaits you.

Tuesday and Wednesday – August 17 and August 18

ETTC/Rutgers Cooperative Extension; Burlington, NJ

For directions: <http://ettc.lrhdsd.org/direct.shtml>

Wednesday and Thursday – August 25 and August 26

Madison Public Library (Chase Room); Madison, NJ

For directions: <http://www.rosenet.org/library/>

Join your peers in a fun and interactive “boot camp” of two 6.5- hour workshops that will provide the knowledge, skills, approaches, activities, and tools to understand and teach personal finance issues to meet the Standard 9.2 requirements. Boot camp participants will engage with other teachers to discuss ways to teach students about financial services, credit, investing, insurance, taxes, loans, and financial goal setting. Creative and innovative teaching strategies will be discussed along with resources for personal and professional use. This will be a fun, interactive, and creative hands-on event.

Attend both workshops and receive a Boot Camp certificate. Space is limited

FEES IF PAID BY August 1

$75 for full boot camp (2 days)

$50 for 1-day camp

FEES IF PAID AFTER August 1

$100 for full boot camp (2 days)

$75 for 1-day camp
